And I have to say it... Forgive me, everyone... But it's very clear that Gary is from Florida 😊

If he uses a north america talkgroup he is well within range of ANY repeater in north america that carries that talkgroup. If he uses WW, the same thing applies. For that reason, he is banned by ID in my c-bridges. Anyone else who carries non-local talkgroups should consider doing the same thing. Pound on that.

There is only one guy so far in the USA stupid enough to consider suing over this, yet there are several IDs that are banned or restricted in NA.

Gary, are you sure you aren't from Quebec? Is you are a Canadian citizen, what ox are you goring in this?

This ridiculous comment right here should be considered Trolling. Bryant's lawyer didn't make a damn cent. PRN guys had to pay theirs to DEFEND against a bullshit litigation.

I can get a list of banned id's on some c-bridges and DMR machines. I can GUARANTEE only 1 person has sued because they are blocked/banned and there are quite a few.

Are you going to sue for "Failure to Allow Internet Access" if/when you get blocked/banned from a network? I'll bet the answer is yes, and you know JUST the Attorney to use.

So, the rest of us that own/operate repeaters and c-bridge, P25NX, Raspberry Pi or any other network interface for Ham radio need to plan for how to toss a turd off the system without exposing themselves to malicious legal action or how to structure access before they get on via membership, rules, Terms of Service or whatever.

You sell guns. I Don't think any repeater owners on here have told you how to do that. I sure won't as I know nothing about your business. Please dont attempt to tell us how to best manage OUR repeaters and OUR networks based on your buddy's success in emptying the wallets of people who were nice enough to allow him to connect to PRN in the first place, and didn't see him for the  he became.

If anyone has the complete filing .pdf stored somewhere, would you mind sharing via Dropbox or Google Drive? The original link to it was to Bryant's attorney's site and it is gone (proolly crashed his site with all the download requests.)

Perhaps you'd care to share a list of "your" repeaters so the rest of us that aren't banned can use them?

Thanks

Are you high Garry?

It was a bitch move to go running to a lawyer like he did.

As long as he is not banned for protected class reasons he should go pound sand. No body owes him anything. No 'due process'. They are privately owned repeaters. What he should have done was pull up his big girl panties, and tied his repeater into 1) a non-NCPN c-bridge or 2) bought his own C-bridge and connected it to a non-NCPN c-bridge and moved on with his life. That's what a mature person would do.

At the end of the day, Ken was a cry baby, who could not just move on so he used a lawyer to both get even, and to get his way.

Brandmeister will let any ol' idiot connect to their network, or so I'm told.

Yes, that's their rule of engagement for pretty much anyone wanting in. A Master server operator cannot refuse to connect someone to the BM network, whether it be a repeater, C-Bridge, ChiCom board or other.

F it. I'll stick with my current infrastructure where I can ban whoever the hell I want.

Homebrew repeaters, DV4Minis, etc. Bad analogy on my part (re. CCRs), but the audio does suck on most of these.

I actually have zero problem with the experimentation aspect of it... that's what amateur radio is all about. It's the preponderance of lids and whackers that makes me a little hesitant. I mean, MARC isn't much better on the operator side, but at least the system owner/repeater owner side of it is policed a little.
